MONUMENTAL TAFFY. We find the following suggestive paragraph going the rounds of the press for the past few weeks: "Happersberger has been awarded the first prize for a design for the Garfield monument. The design includes a pedestal raised on the base of a gently ascending steps. Or these is a seated figure in bronze of America, leaning on a sword and showing sorrow in her face and position. The sides of the pedestral hold eagles, the first guarding the emblem of war and commerce, and the second watching over the flag and shield of the country. Surmounting the pediment is a bronze statue of Garfield ten feet in height, firmly poised, and to which have been given both dig-nity and likeness. The inscription

The inscription on the pedestal is no doubt artistic. Happersberger got a prize for the design, and that settles the artistic part of it. There is no art critic in this shop. Any thing of that kind is too high for usand we don't climb high enough to catch on to it. Strangled for the Republic seems to be what is meant. That does not sound very nice, still it may have a nice sound to the truly refined ear. But it cannot be considered poetic, for one of the three essentials of poetry, according to Wilhelm Schlaegel, is truth. "Strangled for the Republic" may possess sufficient other poetic essentials, according to the learned German critic's idea, but if the expression be not true it is unpoetic. Even without the aid of the great Schlaegel, however, it might be safe enough to depend upon our five senses and jump at the conclusion that there is no poetic charm in being strangled for the Republic, or for anything else. But the fact of the business is, Garfield did not die of strangulation, or, to put it more mildly, out of veneration for the memory of the illustrious dead, he did not "heave up his last sigh" for the Republic. He was shot. He was assassinated by a crank, not because he was President of the United States, and that through him the assassin had designs upon the Republic. To presume this would require a vivid imagination indeed. The judges have said that Guiteau was not crazy; hence his removal of the President could not have been inspired." His death occurred when he was not fighting any battle for the country or engaged in special public duty. Since Guiteau was sane when he fired the shot, the conclusion is unavoidable that he fired to kill a personal enemy, one whom he hated because he could get no appointment from him, and whose death he thought would be pleasing to the stalwart wing of the Republican party. Anybody, from President Arthur down to a justice of the peace, is liable to be "strangled for the Republic" in the same way. There is a whole lot of rot and hogwash thrown onto monuments that would be more pleasing to the eye if left blank or inscribed with the unvarnished truth only.

ITALY has been invited to co-operate but it is supposad that she will debe involved in the quarrel. But dates do not carry much prestige in whatever the action of Italy may be, their train. the fact is apparent that Germany and Austria will allow England and France to subdue Arbai Pasha: but after the victory has been obtained by these powers, Germany, Austria, Russia, and perhaps Italy, will step in and reap the benefits of the victory. The powers are not actuated by a sense of justice to one another, but their own personal interest. but that the Egyptians will be conquered, but after the victory, what?

THERE have been recently signs of the revival of the old Know-Nothing movement in the Republican party. The sentiments of many Republicans, if not of the majority, is that the right of suffrage should be limit; ed, and that the bulk of foreignborn citizens should not be allowed to vote.

Ir has gently leaked out that Hubbell's circular found its way into Tritle's pocket while Arizona's first citizen was at Washington. It has not been asserted how much it drew forth, but it is very probable that the Governor came down handsomely.

DIBBLE will enter the Republican convention as the wild, untamed connubiator from the Huachucas, the spread eagle radical of Cochise county, and the general game rooster of the Republican flock.

THE prosperity of Arizona, and the general desire for the rapid development of our great mining resources, demand that all questionable efforts directed against legitimate enterprises be condemned by public opinion. While, of course, it is not within the province of a public journal to interfere with a free administration of justice, so far as ordinary litigation is concerned, still it is undoubtedly its duty to closely scrutinize all actions having a tendency to P. LIESENFELD mjure a community. Conservative men, of all shades of opinion, have a well grounded belief that the suit recently instituted against the Grand Central Mining Company is not only absolutely devoid of merit, but is the forerunner of what may become a dangerous precedent. We do not go as far as some, in declaring the on the pedestal is: 'James Abraham action to be an attempt at blackmail, Garfield. Strangulatus pro Republifor the reason that such an assertion would be a direct attack upon the personal characters of the counsel for the plaintiff. We assume simply that the attorneys in the case have been deceived by the designing father of a criminal, who has probably brought the suit as a desperate expedient in behalf of the liberation of his son, from the penitentiary. The long delay in bringing the action, the improbable story constituting the basis of the complaint, the color of crime overshadowing all, and the magnitude of the stake aimed at, all go to show the claim to be as fallacious as it is romantic. The effect of the suit, upon the prosperity of imagination and pathos, the two the Grand Central company, may be damaging in the extreme, in causing a depression in the value of its stock. and deferring investment. As the welfare of Cochise county in general, and of Tombstone in particular, depends upon a complete and perfect protection of mining industry, it can be readily seen how necessary it is that the people of this community belled against Cornell and are trotting out the old man to make a contest against the present Governor. It will be a very interesting fight, being, of course, a forerunner to the Presidential battle of 1884. If Grant should be nominated, it would freshen him up wonderfully for the big national fight, and make things generally interesting. In the mean time the Democrats and Tammany Hall are trying to amalgamate, and pull in the same traces, with Abram S. Hewitt or Rosewell P. Flower as their gubernatorial candidate. If such a union could be effected, there is no denying the ability of the Democrats to carry the in the protection of the Suez canal, State by 30,000 majority. This would leave Grant in a worse fix cline to act with the other powers, on than he found himself after the Chithe ground that she does not want to cago convention, as defeated candilieves that anything will come of the suit, except temporary expense and

THE Territorial campaign is running along quietly but firmly. From present appearances it will be a onesided contest, as the Republicans have about given up the hope of defeating Mr. Oury. His solid, industrious work for the benefit of the Territory during his Congressional term has been recognized everywhere Hence it is easy to infer that new and many Republicans will sustain complications will arise, and the him with their votes. The Republicrossing of swords by the powers is cans are at sea, and can scarcely within easy range of the possibilities | prevail upon any prominent member of the near future. There is no doubt of the party to make a figure-head of himself to maintain a Republican organization.

> Ex-JUDGE PORTER is, seemingly, the candidate selected by the northern Republicans, to pit against Dibble. It won't work. The Tombstone statesman has made up his mind to capture that convention, and when it comes to work of that kind he can give pointers to them all.
